T - Ducts

- As an alternative to diverter dampers multilouvre dampers can be used in T-Ducts and linked to provide an effective inlet / bypass isolation.
- Adjustable linkages can be provided between inlet and bypass multilouvre dampers to allow the use of a single actuator. The actuator can be either ON / OFF or Control duty.

OUR SPECIALITIES

- Self-aligning, Self-Lubricating (Inert) & Maintenance free bearings (Mika, Arvis, Dodge, Hightemp, numerous for high temperature applications).
- Self-aligning and Adjustable Heavy Duty Tie rods for connecting linkages in Lower dampers.
- Mechanical packed glands for toxic gas applications (zero leakage to atmosphere through shaft seal). We have an established fix method to prove Sealing efficiency On Volume Flow tests and 100% sealing.
- No landing box in-between multilouvre blades.

Diverter Dampers

- Diverter dampers are most commonly used in Turbine Exhaust Gas applications, to divert the exhaust gases from waste heat recovery boiler to bypass duct.

Flap Isolators

- Flap Isolators are mainly used in cold mill isolation, as a replacement of air-gas Guillotine Dampers.
- A vent valve provided on the isolator helps to relieve the hot gases locked through first set of seals to achieve 100% isolation without seal air system.

Butterfly Dampers

- Butterfly dampers are simple and cost effective, provides regulating and ON/OFF operation.
- Actuator arrangement decides the desired sealing efficiency, as offer 100% isolation dampers with seal air system.

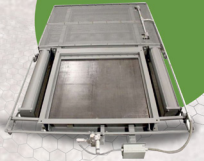

Multilouvre Dampers

- Multilouvre dampers are available in parallel or opposed blade action. Opposed blade operation provides better flow modulation.
- Various sealing arrangements can be made from simple metal to metal to double skin blade sealing system with seal air fan to provide 100% isolation.
- Multilouvre dampers can be operated pneumatically, electric pneumatically, electrically, mechanically or even manually by a simple hand lever.

Guillotine Dampers

- Guillotine dampers are used in many applications where a positive isolation is required.
- Guillotine dampers are constructed from heavy formed channels and structurally designed blades.
- Boxes will be provided for high temperature applications and where lock to atmosphere is not permitted.
- Actuator can be manual, pneumatic or electric, with different lifting mechanisms according to client specifications.

Inlet Vane Dampers

- Inlet vane or Radial vane dampers are used in fire inlet applications, to provide control of the air flow into the fan and at the same time it provides a "lift" at the inlet which enhances the performance of the fan.
- The inlet vane control dampers are designed with an without a center hub. Without a center hub design requires a pair of bearings per shaft over central hub design but it provides less pressure drop.
- Actuator can be manual, electric or an electro-pneumatic system.

Client Testimonials

Our brand was given a massive global reach by Fresh Mindz. Their service was top notch. Within 3 months, we started to see results. Their team has a major part in all the enquiries. We would happily recommend them to our business peers.

We were not able to articulate our services to our customers. We are delighted with the finished website by Fresh Mindz. Our new website has now become an integral part of our marketing campaigns and we proudly present it to all our prospects at our business meetings.
